

ARS scientists develop control strategies for invasive weeds such as this overgrown water hyacinth in the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta in California. These weeds increase water loss, amplifying problems in areas already suffering from drought.